Preference Name	Status	Type	Value
intl.uidirection	default	integer	-1
io.activity.enabled	default	boolean	false
javascript.enabled	default	boolean	true
